

CURE Newsletter

Each year at the start of the ragging season, CURE brings out a newsletter in order to educate the public about the issue of ragging and make people realise that this problem is much bigger than they have ever dreamt of! Each and every college educated Indian in the last two decades (yes, even Indian students abroad are ragged by Indian seniors there!!) has faced/witnessed ragging at some point of their collegelife. Talk to your friends/relatives and ask them to recount their days, you may get to hear something you would never even have imagined. It is to dispel such myths that we have been printing our newsletters every year. Write to us to get a free copy of the newsletter for 2005. You can of course ask for more copies to distribute to your friends and contacts. newsletter@noragging.com Electronic copies of the newsletters can also be downloaded from here: CURE Newsletter for 2005
CURE Newsletter for 2004

(CURE Newsletters for 2006 and 2007 are currently unavailable)